David A. Sleet is an American scientist recognized for championing the application of behavioral science to unintentional injury prevention and helping to establish injury prevention as a global public health concern.

Mayhew Derryberry: Pioneer of Health Education

IN THE PANTHEON OF HEALTH education, Mayhew Derryberry stands out as a leader of uncommon vision and uncommon action. As the first chief of health education in the federal government, Derryberry catalyzed the nation's earliest efforts in health promotion and disease prevention. He was born December 25, 1902, in Columbia, Tenn.

Although little is known about his early life, we know that he was

I know that she would be profoundly moved by the efforts of John Allegrante and David Sleet, as well as, again, NCHE, to revisit her dream of creating Derryberry's Educating for Health. John and David have validated our original efforts, for which we are eternally grateful. On behalf of the family, and in loving memory of Helen and Derry, I want to express our heartfelt thanks to John, David
